Turkey Indicates Support of Yugoslavia as Nation Seeks Red Support.

BULLETIN

(By International News Service)

Slim new hopes arose today for a peaceful settlement of the Yugoslav crisis, as Berlin took steps to name a new minister to Yugoslavia to replace Viktor Von Heeren who returned home. Ulrich Von Hasselt, the new envoy designated by the Nazis was believed acceptable by Yugoslavia.

(By Associated Press)

British troops were reported today to have trapped nearly 100,000 Italian soldiers in East Africa in twin drives into Emperor Haile Selassie's African rooftop kingdom of Ethiopia and the Italian colony of Eritrea.

Dispatches from Cairo said the British seizure of Asmara, capital of Eritrea, had thrust the survivors of 40,000 Italian troops from the bloody battle of Cheren into a pocket with their backs to the Red sea—where the British navy bars retreat.

In Ethiopia, conquered by the Italians in 1935-36, British columns striking inland from captured Diredawa were reported pressing towards Addis Ababa, the capital. About 60,000 Italians, led by the Duke of Aosta, were said to be encircled there.

Premier Mussolini's high command asserted that Fascist troops were putting up "stiff resistance against numerically superior British forces" in the Awash river valley, between Diredawa and Addis Ababa.

The British command of Red sea waters was highlighted by a London admiralty communique noting that naval aircraft had sunk a 1,526-ton Italian destroyer after it left Massaua harbor and that a 4,188-ton German merchant ship had been "intercepted" by a British warship when it attempted to escape from the port.

Massaua lies only 75 miles by rail from fallen Asmara.

In North Africa, Axis communiques reported that German and Italian troops were pressing offensive operations against Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell's Libyan desert campaigners and had advanced 30 miles eastward.

Hitler's high command said the British hastily retreated to Agedabia after a clash with Nazi mechanized units.

Presumably, a considerable force of Gen. Wavell's Libyan armies has now been shifted to Greece, leaving only defensive garrisons to block the combined Nazi-Fascist counter-offensive in North Africa.

In the Balkan crisis, Turkey indicated her support of Yugoslavia when Turkish President Ismet Inonu sent a message of Light Rate Bill Fails To Come Up

No Ordinance Ready, Says Solicitor; Council to Study Offer.

A five-year contract offer by the Public Service company to lower domestic electric rates for Mansfield was side-tracked last night by council.

Russell D Porch chairman of the utilities committee, said that he had been informed by City Solicitor Marion D Ward that an ordinance incorporating the company's offer had not been drafted.

Porch said Ward had stated that he had found several items in the company's proposal which needed "clarification" and that the committee would study the procedure employed by Lorain, Elyria and Sandusky before drafting an ordinance. Those cities, served by the O. P. S now have lower rates than Mansfield.

No mention of the electric rate was made by any council member except Porch who told council that the committee was considering the proposal. He also indicated that after sufficient information had been gathered that council would be asked to meet as a committee.

"Although it looks good on its face," said Porch, "we are going to study the proposal thoroughly. We will write Lorain, Elyria, Sandusky and other cities having contracts with the OPS and ask their experience with them."

Porch said that he believed that the ordinance would be drafted before the next council meeting.

Councilmen Arthur L. Croak and Fred Miller, members of Porch's committee, Monday balked at recommending the ordinance for passage. They believed that there was no need for a contract and suggested that the company merely file the lower rates with the state public utilities commission.

Elyria and Lorain have had rate contracts with the company for about 20 years. Mansfield is the only major city in the O. P. S. district not operating under a rate contract.

Ward objected to a suggested ordinance submitted by the company saying there were technical and legal questions which should be answered before the city drafts its own ordinance.

The company made its offer, which it estimated would save consumers about $350,000 in five years, in a letter to Mayor William J. Locke and the council last week. It suggested that the contract, if passed, go into effect on July 1 and asked notice before then to build a sales force.

The afflicted area spread over the vicinity of East Sixth, Orange, North Mulberry, Franklin and Adams streets.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton and Gas company officials at noon today reported the source of the escaping gas had not yet been located.

Miners Leaving Posts--Rioting In Milwaukee

Highlights of the tense labor situation in the United States today as a work stoppage became effective in all soft coal mines in the Appalachian area and violent rioting closed the Allis-Chalmers plant at Milwaukee are pictured above. In the top photo, miners are shown leaving the main shaft of the Pittsburgh Coal company at Library, Pa., last night as negotiators failed to reach an agreement on new mine workers' contracts. Below at left is Dr John R Steelman, federal conciliator, who is working with union and management representatives in the soft coal controversy over wages. The scene below at right is from the Allis-Chalmers plant where 450 police battled 3,000 pickets and Wisconsin's governor Julius Heil dodged stones when he attempted to make a speech to end the disorders.

Other Hemisphere Nations Also Act; Peru Bars German News Agency.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (U P) — The United States has decided to reject formally the German and Italian protests against the seizure of 30 of their ships in American harbors, Secretary of State Cordell Hull said today.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—United States intelligence service, it was learned authoritatively today, have concentrated their efforts on determining whether any German or Italian officials in this country instigated the wholesale sabotage which crippled most of the 30 Axis vessels seized in American ports during the week-end

If the complicity of any diplomatic or consular officials should be established, informed sources said, the state department is ready to take immediate action. The guilty officials will be handed their passports, or their prompt recall will be demanded.

Officials said that preliminary evidence made it seem "very evident" that there was co-ordinated direction of the widespread sabotage, but a formal pronouncement was withheld pending complete reports of inquiries by the federal bureau of investigation and the navy's intelligence service.

Elsewhere in the hemisphere, the story yesterday was one of seized, fired or scuttled Axis shipping; of crews in custody; of government investigations being pushed—with the threat of criminal prosecution in the background.

Since the week-end, 16 vessels have been taken into custody by Latin-American nations; 11 have been fired or scuttled, and 2 have taken flight In some cases, the governments resorted to a sterner show of force than the United States.

20,000 Walk Out at River Rouge Factory

Wisconsin Governor Dodges Stones As Riots Close Allis-Chalmers Unit; Guard Shot When Coal Mining Comes to Full Halt.

BULLETIN

DETROIT—(AP)—Strike disorders in which a score or more persons were injured near the Ford Motor company today led to an order from Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner for state police to maintain order there.

(By Associated Press)

CIO automobile workers struck today at a huge Ford Motor company plant, riots forced the closing of the defense-important Allis-Chalmers factory, and a wage dispute paralyzed most of the nation's soft coal mines.

At least 48 persons were injured in the Allis-Chalmers rioting, when strike sympathizers hurled brickbats and rocks yesterday at Milwaukee peace officers who used tear gas and fire hoses.

A mine guard was shot to death and a union picket was wounded in sporadic violence in Harlan county, Kentucky, accompanying the coal mining stoppage.

The Ford strikers began with sporadic fighting between pickets and non-strikers.

The CIO United Automobile Workers called the strike shortly after midnight at Ford's Rouge plant at Dearborn, Mich., where 86,000 men are employed. The union claimed almost immediately that the 20,000 night shift workers had left the factory and were prepared to take up picketing positions.

R. J Thomas, UAW president, declared the strike was "forced on the union" by the company, which he said had for months "engaged in a deliberate and continuous effort to prevent adjustment of the Ford workers' grievances through means of conference and conciliation." Yesterday, Thomas asserted, the company "deliberately discharged the chosen spokesman of the Rouge workers" and "falsely ascribed to the Rouge workers the attempt to carry on a sit-down strike."

Earlier Harry H Bennett, Ford personnel director, declared the "union men have seized the plant illegally" and called on the governor of Michigan to have them evacuated. After the union strike call, Bennett announced that "all those who want to work should report as usual" today.

The plant, largest single factory unit in the world, has orders for army trucks.

Gov. Julius Heil of Wisconsin personally dodged stones in the Allis-Chalmers disorders near Milwaukee, and had to seek refuge inside the plant. His automobile, along with several others, was damaged by the rioters.

Heil at last got out of the plant and immediately telegraphed President Roosevelt that "the situation is absolutely out of control of all

400 QUIT WORK AT HUMPHRYES

Picket Line Forms in Front of Plant; Union and Company Conferring.

Operations at the Humphryes Manufacturing company plant were at a standstill today after all of the 400 factory employes quit work or failed to report for work this morning in what they termed a protest against the company's refusal to grant a wage increase.

The walk-out began at 8 p. m. yesterday and the plant was empty and idle this morning. No workers went on the job when the shift changed at 8:30 a. m' today. Picket lines formed about midnight at entrances to the building, but the picketing was peaceful and there was no trouble of any kind at the plant. More than 20 pickets were on duty this morning.

The "work stoppage" was called by Local 756 of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, a CIO unit, which recently was recognized by the company as a sole bargaining agent for Humphreys employes.

Adam Leitenberger, president of the local union, and an international representative of the UERMW who was not immediately identified were in conference with company officials before noon today at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. It was also learned that a federal labor conciliator was in the city for the conference.

Leitenberger said he could make no statement regarding the negotiations, but added that "everything is going to work out all right."

Pickets at the plant said a two-day "work stoppage" was ordered

Bickel is being held as a suspect in the slaying of a Youngstown woman, Mrs. Alphonsun Foley, who was shot and killed when she resisted being robbed, dispatches said today.

Police Bill, Once Vetoed, Passed Again By City Dads

For the second time in 14 months, Mayor William J. Locke today had before him a surprise ordinance, passed last night by city council reducing the work week for police.

With eight members present, council unanimously approved the measure, identical to a bill passed in February 1940 but later vetoed by the mayor.

The legislation provides police with every sixth day off instead of every eighth day as under the existing ordinance.

Sponsored by Fourth Ward Councilman Jacob Kutschall, a similar measure was vetoed a year ago by Locke on the basis that it was inconsistent with requests from Police Chief Meade K. Bates for additional officers to the force.

The bill at that time was presented as a surprise and was approved by a vote of 7 to 2 over the protests of the chief was told council that the legislation would "cripple" the department.

No additional patrolmen have been added to the police force during the past year.

Councilman C. N. Shultz, who was absent at last night's meeting, and George Kyle, both Republicans, voiced opposition to the bill a year ago. Kyle voted for the ordinance last night.

Bates said today he knew nothing about the proposed measure, which Kutschall stated had been re-submitted at the request of "some of the patrolmen."

The chief pointed out that every sixth day off would result in the loss of 536 man days a year or the loss of one and a half men per day.

He did not say whether he would protest to Mayor Locke who has 10 days in which to sign the bill or again veto it.

Elaborates Story of Reds' Scheming to Overthrow U. S.

SAN FRANCISCO — (AP) — Benjamin Gitlow's story of Communist scheming in the United States, with Moscow firmly directing every move, was elaborated today in the record at the Harry Bridges deportation hearing.

Without actually naming the CIO waterfront leader in his testimony, Gitlow, who once was a sizeable figure in the Communist party of the United States, was led by government counsel through a description of how the Communists work in this country—with violent overthrow of the government as the ultimate objective

If the government can prove that this subversive objective is what the party is working for, and that Bridges has been a Communist or affiliated with the party, he can be ordered deported to his native Australia.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Now that Nancy Kelly and Edmond O'Brien are cast together in "Parachute Battalion," the spirit of romantic inquiry prompts an investigation of the circumstances that cast them together in life.

It all began, as they say in the forewords, one day in New York when Ed was in his agent's office and Nancy happened to telephone her agent, the same guy.

"There's a pretty girl on the line," said the agent, and Ed got on.

"Hi-ya, babe," he said.

"I'm no babe, and get off the telephone," said Nancy, who's not Irish for nothing.

Neither is Ed. When, soon after they were formally introduced, they had a date. Nancy was all of 15, and Ed about four years older.

Nancy was playing in "Susan and God" at the time, and Ed was in "Star Wagon" at another theater. Nancy wasn't allowed to have evening dates but between matinees and evening performances she could have trips to the park and dinners with Ed. This went on for a couple of years, during which both did shows and radio work until Nancy, at 17, came to Hollywood. Then Ed came out for "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," which was an awful price to pay for being near a girl.

But love is a wonderful thing.

OUT here everybody knew it was the Real Thing because the youngsters kept having, with fair regularity, romantic spats. They would quarrel, and make up, and quarrel again. They had one final quarrel at about the time Ed finished the movie that will keep him here, "A Guy, a Girl and a Gob." Ed packed up for New York.

Then in a weak moment he telephoned from the station, to see if she wouldn't come down to say goodbye forever. She agreed to meet him half-way.

They headed for Yuma, driving all night, and found a priest, and so—they were married.

MEDICAL SERVICE FOR LOW INCOME GROUPS STUDIED

House Gets Bill Approved By Ohio State Association; Better Health Seen.

COLUMBUS—A plan for providing low-cost medical service to families of low income was brought up for a vote in the house of representatives today with the support of the Ohio State Medical association.

The proposed legislation would authorize creation of non-profit associations serving families of $2,400 a year income or less and to single persons whose earnings were $1,800 or less.

The associations could embrace a city, a county or group of counties, but could not operate unless 51 per cent of the physicians in the territory agreed to participate. Subscribers would have their choice of any participating physician or surgeon.

Sponsors of the bill, introduced by Rep. Margaret Mahoney (D-Cleveland), said it should raise the health level of the public by encouraging citizens to seek medical care more frequently.

Ted F. Silvey, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio CIO council, addressed a letter to all house members asking them to vote against the measure.

"We think the purpose of this measure is not to enable group action for the benefit of all patients, but rather to entrench the medical profession firmly in the economics of group insurance," Silvey wrote.

Earlier, the house completed enactment of a bil authorizing township trustees to construct and repair radios up to a cost of $3,000 without competitive bidding.

The measure, however, may not stand a test of its constitutionality, some members said.

Two other bills passed by the house and sent to the senate would create a state nurses' board and remove the sales and use taxes from machinery, implements and materials used in farming, horticulture and floriculture.

The senate, meanwhile, gave its approval to five bills by Sen. Fred Seibert (R-Auglaize) changing fish and game laws. One would permit the use of trot lines with not more than 30 hooks upon payment of a $3 resident fee or $10 non-resident fee.

COUNCIL OK'S STREET JOBS

Authorizes Funds To Grade, Resurface and Oil City Thoroughfares.

Approximately $26,000 worth of street improvements and the oiling of various unimproved streets throughout the city were approved as emergency orders last night by council. Of the amount put into the street program, $5,700 will be paid by the city.

Council decided to grade Rhein avenue from Sturges avenue to Wood street and to resurface it at a total cost of $11,500. Other programs will include the resurfacing of Bowman street by widening and repaving the roadway and surfacing of the recently-constructed bridge over Touby's run, and the improvement of Sturges avenue from Cline to Lexington. The latter will be done for $9,700, of which $2,000 will be given by the district.

C. H. Hebel, street superintendent, said today that he would start work on the projects as soon as the weather permits. The projects will include the widening, grading, paving, curbing and necessary storm drainage for the streets in the program.

Council also referred to its sewer committee, a petition for a sanitary sewer on Fifth avenue from Ashland road to Orange street and another for one at Poplar and Sloan avenues.

More than 350 street blocks will be oiled under the program approved by council. Work on the oiling will not start until the weather is warmed considerably and city street workers have completed the job of replacing pavement torn up for the $70,000 waterline project.

JUDGE MAKES PERSONAL PLEA FOR LARGER STAFF OF CLERKS

Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch last night made a personal plea to council for additional help to answer what he termed as "a desperate need" to handle the increasing business in municipal court.

Judge Kalbfleisch said that his present force of a clerk, bailiff and two deputies was overworked and that additional duties heaped on it had swelled it far beyond its capacity.

Council heard the judge trace the development of the court's business since its inception in 1928 under the state municipal court law. He pointed out that the duties had grown tremendously since then but that the staff had remained the same size.

"In that time," said Judge Kalbfleisch, "we have had to assume an ever-greater number of potential cases from the dockets, the growth of garnishees, and the state trusteeship law."

The municipal court head told council that "none of the cases filed in court are finished until the judgment is paid. This entails a great deal of daily bookwork and office detail. We have about 12,000 potential cases at present."

The judge called attention to the fact that the court is six weeks behind in mailing $5,000 worth of trusteeship shares to creditors. More than 900 checks were sent out for these creditors in January, according to Judge Kalbfleisch.

Kalbfleisch said he would be glad to get any aid but suggested that the new deputy's salary be at least $125. The court handled only 158 civil and 1,100 criminal cases in its first year but civil cases now run well over 700 annually and criminal closer to 1,500, he said.

These gains, according to the judge, give the clerks too much work to do. The handling of the trusteeships alone could be considered a full-time job, Judge Kalbfleisch said.

Judge Kalbfleisch appealed to council once before in a letter and was given an extra deputy for a three month's period.

"I'll take your line over to the creek just once more and then you got to stop bothering me!"

Edith Ross and Virginia Howard, teachers at John Simpson Junior high school were victims of mild April Fool jokes yesterday by their classes at the school. Both were told that they were wanted in the hall by pupil stooges. The teachers couldn't locate any callers in the hallway, and upon their return to their class-rooms they were greeted by a loud chorus of "April Fool," much to the pupils' glee.

In an informal talk to about 70 Richland county selectees for military training at a party last night at the American Legion home, R. O. Davies made the boys feel so good about camp life that they won't mind going to the army. Davies, who recently visited Camp Shelby, Miss., with Mayor William J. Locke, said, "I got the best night's sleep in years the night I stayed with the boys in camp." Some of the boys from Mansfield he saw in camp have gained as much as six or seven pounds in a few weeks and they are getting so much to eat they can't clean up their plates, Davies added.

"John," said Mrs. John Graff to her husband the other day, "that cherry tree needs trimming again." Accordingly, Graff got out his pruning shears and went out to the lawn of his home on West Third street. He had just about finished cutting off excess branches when his wife told him to bring several of them into the basement and put them in very hot water. Graff did as he was told. Today, the Graffs have those same branches in their living room. They have burst into a riot of fragrant blooms and John suspects that that was what his wife had in mind all along when she told him to prune the tree.

REPORTS U. S. TO ACT HEARD IN WASHINGTON

Question of Profiteering To Be Aired During Lease-Lend Talks at Capital.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The administration, it was learned today, may act soon to "crack down" on food speculators suspected of seeking "undue" profits either from domestic needs or from those of Great Britain and the other nations marked for lease-lend aid.

The question of food profiteering was understood to have figured prominently in official conferences now in progress looking to formulation of a broad program to assure adequate supplies both for domestic and foreign aid requirements.

Administration sources reported that evidence uncovered in the food study to date might cause the government to impose price controls unless the food industry, itself, takes action to eliminate "undue" speculation and price advances.

In this connection, it was said that the administration was perturbed over recent speculative activity in foodstuffs which Great Britain was expected to seek as lease-lend assistance.

The fundamentals of the food supply general program were discussed yesterday at a White House conference attended by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard and Leon Henderson, member of the national defense commission.

Officials said surveys may show need for expansion in production of several types of food this summer. Included might be dairy products, some truck crops, potatoes, poultry products and possibly some specialty crops.

"We didn't score a point," said Harry Mehock, describing the week-end jaunt of a group of his Mansfield high tracksters to the Tri-State meet at Pittsburgh, "but we made the big point we went after.

"We sold the Mansfield Relays to track coaches of 16 schools in the Pittsburgh event.

"That doesn't mean we'll get full entries for the Relays from those 16 schools, but we'll get the cream of the crop, including some state, district, and meet champions."

De-emphasis, Mehock reported, has lifted its ugly head in western Pennsylvania athletics. Long trips for athletic squads are being frowned on, but sternly.

There seems to be a growing antipathy between class room faculty members and athletic departments and right now athletics find themselves in the under-dog role.

You'd think, wouldn't you, that educators would be bright enough to co-ordinate education of the mind and body. But too often, it seems, they'd rather haggle, and bicker and blast, and thus spoil both ends of the program.

Track coaches at the Pittsburgh meet were irked not a little by new restrictions on their activities, but 16 of them agreed to "hire a bus and bring you our best boys."

The 16 plan to charter a big bus jointly, so the few boys who are picked should be plenty good enough for Mansfield Relays competition.

The schools included in the trip of champions plan are: Mt. Lebanon, Canonsburg, Clairmont, Sewickly, Freedom, Derry Township Avalon, Aliquippa, Brentwood, Connellsville, Donora, Dormont, Wilkinsburg, Leetsville, Uniontown and Meadville.

Four Erie schools already have promised team entries. They are: St. Vincent, Academy, East, and Tech. So Pennsylvania will be represented in spite of faculty feuds.

Mansfield Tyger track season opens Friday afternoon when the reserves meet the Bucyrus first team at Stadium field at 4 o'clock.

Saturday the Tygers travel to Newark to meet the good Wildcat scanty-clad aggregation.

"We'll probably be trimmed in both meets," says Mehock, "but like the football and basketball teams, this is our year for experience. Next year we go!"

Nelson Missing Two-Foot Putts

AUGUSTA, Ga. —(AP)— You can get 7 to 1 odds on Byron Nelson as a probable winner of the Augusta Masters tournament. But take it from Byron Nelson, he's no bargain at the price. The reason? He's missing two-foot putts.

PGA champion and winner of the recent Greensboro open, the big Toledo pro won his Masters crown in 1937 and was third last year, five strokes behind winner Jimmy Demaret. Yesterday, in practice over the incredibly smooth Augusta national course, he was the hottest thing in sight from tee to green. And there he folded.

"I took 37 putts," Nelson confessed gloomily after the disastrous round. "And you don't win tournaments that way."

Buckeyes Get Hard Workout

Discover They Can't Rest With Brown.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Coach Paul E. Brown, who uses the assembly line plan in constructing precision football machines, has had his first look at the material which he hopes to build into an Ohio State juggernaut by next fall.

The Bucks, undaunted by wind and rain and mud, held their first outdoor workout yesterday, and they were a tired but smiling lot when it was over. If nothing else, the initial workout under the Massillon miracle man and his corps of new assistants drummed up a bit of business for the laundry, for more than four-score uniforms were caked with mud.

Under former coaches the Ohioans stayed under the shelter of the huge Buckeye stadium during bad weather, but Brown altered all that.

"This weather is just made to order for us," he told the squad in a pre-practice talk. "Football is played right down in the dirt, and that's were we're going to learn it."

Not much football was displayed in the practice, the session consisting of rolling around in the mud in various poses as Brown put the players through setting up exercises; kicking and passing, tackling and blocking, and pushing sleds hither, thither and yon.

"We are looking for specific things in these early workouts," Brown said. "Each day we'll find out a couple of things about a couple more guys. But before long you'll begin to see the results of all this preliminary work."

Brown's "assembly line" plan of construction is expected to get under way this week. Under that plan he outlines a play to the entire varsity squad in a pre-practice chalk talk. On the field the candidates for each position have a separate coach who works them at their assignment on that particular play.

Before long the guards and tackles are put together. Then the center and ends are moved in, and the line play perfected. Then the backs take their places and the whole thing is performed with the team as a unit. If the timing of any group is poor, back goes that group with its coach for more individual and intensive instruction.

The squad found in the initial workout that Brown isn't "fooling." With most of the players gasping for breath after a half hour or more of setting up exercises in soggy suits, he called for 75-yard races by the candidates for various berths. Among them were two huge tackles who barely made the finish line, and then laid down to catch their breath.

The minute they hit the turf Brown was beside them shouting: "On your feet, you fellows! You can't play football lying on the ground, and you'll have to get in shape to keep your feet at all times. We stand up during time out in all games, and the only time we go down is when we are hit or hurt."

Charley Anderson, huge end who was dropped from school because of scholastic difficulties during the winter quarter, was out for the opening practice, hoping to be eligible by fall—a hope that was echoed by Brown, who sees the end situation as one of the big Buck problems.

Ed Bruckner of Sandusky, veteran guard, and Emil Molder of Akron, a yearling tackle of merit, also were on the field, but both are due to be gone with the draft before fall rolls around.

The spring sessions will continue until May 10, when the varsity and reserves meet in a regulation game in the stadium.

Knox Battles Jimmy Bivins

Glover Meets Frankie Wallace in 5-Rounder.

CLEVELAND —(AP)—About 11 o'clock tonight Dayton's Buddy Knox will know if his 12-year boxing career is over.

The Blond Bomber, beaten in his last two fights, says he will retire if he is knocked out or decisively defeated by Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland in a 10-rounder.

"I made that promise to my wife before I left Dayton," Knox said.

Buddy said if he quit he would "get a job some place in Dayton." His wife will be unable to come here for the all-important bout because their four-year-old son, Charles, has the measles.

Beaten only once in 21 fights, Bivins is a 3 to 2 favorite to stop Knox in a bout labeled by Promoter Bob Brickman for "the heavyweightweight championship of Ohio."

The Dayton scrapper, who has battled many of the nation's leading heavyweights in the last few years, lost to Tony Musto of Chicago, Joe Louis' next opponent, and was kayoed by Melio Bettina of Beacon, N. Y., former light heavyweight titlist, in his last two starts.

Bivins' only setback was at the hands of Anton Christoforidis of Greece, recognized as 175-pound champion by the National Boxing association.

The 10-round semi-final matches Maxie Berger of Montreal and Irish Eddie Dunne of New York. They are junior welterweights.

Mel Shines In Pitching Turn

Blanks Giants Seven Innings; Tribe Loses.

SELMA, Ala. — (AP) — The hitless Cleveland Indians, trying to forget their batting troubles, oozed confidence today as Al Smith took up the pitching burder in another tussle with the New York Giants.

The tribe lost to the National league yesterday, 3 to 1, but the players are still talking about Mel Harder's stellar hurling and what his all-out comeback would mean to Cleveland's pennant chances.

The 32-year-old right hander, who has been with the Indians 14 seasons, blanked the Giants for seven innings, allowing only five hits and fanning seven. His control was near perfect, only one New York batter walking.

The Giants won the game with two runs off Nate Andrews in the eighth and another off Joe Heving in the ninth.

As usual Cleveland hits were scarce, singles by Jeff Heath, Beau Bell and Oscar Grimes comprising the total. All three singles came in the fifth and produced Cleveland's only run.

Ken Keltner was the only regular infielder in the lineup. Hal Trosky was out with a stomach ailment, Lou Boudreau with an old ankle sprain and Ray Mack with a twisted foot. All were expected back in action shortly.

STATE PIN TOURNEY DRAWS 478 TEAMS

DAYTON —(AP)— Swelled by 124 more teams than were entered last year, the 38th annual Ohio State Bowling tournament opens here Saturday.

Tournament Manager Otto Zevakos announced that 478 teams would compete. Last year the Cleveland Rosenblums emerged victorious at Toledo, where 354 five-man teams contested.

Golf Stars Prepared For Meet

Bobby Jones Hopes to Get Among Contenders.

By LAWTON CARVER

AUGUSTA, Ga.—(INS)—Golfdom's hand-picked half hundred were gathered here today to slug it out beginning tomorrow for the masters' championship over the National Golf Club course, which Georgia's own Bobby Jones brought into some sort of a shrine.

In so short a time this setting and this tournament have assumed prestige and popularity approaching the peak built up over many years by the national open. This event, the masters, is supposed to be closest to the ideal for such competition.

So tomorrow fifty or a few more golfers who have established themselves among the greats of the past or present will renew the battle here in a leisurely sort of way, starting play around noon and going through only 18 holes a day through Sunday.

Everybody had arrived by today not overlooking Lawson Little, the open champion; Byron Nelson, the national professional titleholder; Jimmy Demaret, the defending champion; and Sam Snead, who has been bracketed with Nelson at 7-to-1 in the wagering to win the eighth running of the championship.

An extra added attraction and preliminary to the main fire works was a scheduled 18-hole match today between Bobby Jones and Tommy Armour on one side and Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen on the other—renewing their recent clash in Nassau for the British Red Cross. No one was quite sure whether this event would materialize, but everybody was waiting for it.

In any case, the stars were to go through practice again today in preparation for the start of the festivities tomorrow, with Jones still hopeful and probably a little determined to get up among the contenders for the first time.

* * *

Having done that well in the first year of this already revered fixture, he has fallen off annually since. Everybody is hoping with him that he will be able to shine just once more and do it this week.

Hank Gowdy Gets Game Spotlight

FORT BENNING, Ga. —(AP)— The Cincinnati Reds and Boston Red Sox play here today, but players will yield the spotlight to Harry "Hank" Gowdy, Cincinnati Reds' coach and first major league player to volunteer in the World war.

"It's "Gowdy day" at "Gowdy field" which the tall baseball warrior helped dedicate some years ago; and when the Reds are batting, the man in the coaching box behind first base—Sergeant Gowdy of the Rainbow division—will rival developments on the diamond for fans' attention.

In 1917 "old lank Hank" volunteered for army service, leading a parade of major league enrollees which at mustering out included 103 men from the National league alone.

NOVA FAVORED BY 7-5 ODDS IN BOUT

NEW YORK —(INS)— Odds were 7 to 5 today that Lou Nova will beat former Heavyweight Champion Max Baer in their 12-round rumpus at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Nova concluded his workouts with four rounds of boxing at a local gym yesterday, but he was none too impressive. Baer will finish his heavy work this afternoon by sparring four rounds at his Lakewood, N. J., training camp.

Asserts Conn Is Next Champ

Ray and Billy To See Louis-Musto Bout.

CHICAGO —(INS)— "Make no mistake gentlemen, you are looking at the next heavyweight champion of the world."

Quiet, ring-scarred Johnny Ray, former Pittsburgh featherweight, made this prediction today as he pointed to his charge, former Light Heavyweight Champion Billy Conn, who was rounding out a sparring session in preparation for his 12-round bout with Gunnar Barlund at the Chicago stadium Friday night.

As Conn walked on the scales, causing the needle to rest near 182 pounds, Ray expressed satisfaction over the condition of the Pittsburgh candidate for Joe Louis' pugilistic crown. Despite his listless showing against sparring mates, the slightly drawn and tired appearing Conn evinced litle concern over his bout with Barlund.

Ray said he and Conn will be at ringside next Monday night when Joe Louis meets Tony Musto in St. Louis. Conn expressed a hope that Musto "will stay around long enough" to enable him to make a thorough study of the Louis fighting machine.

Mackinzie Wins Tilt for Barons

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Big Bill MacKenzie, their tireless captain, today was the toast of a crippled band of Cleveland Barons who believe they can't be beaten in the final playoffs for the American league hockey championship.

MacKenzie split the Hershey defense in the closing minutes of an overtime period last night and then slipped the puck to Oscar Aubuchon for the deciding goal in a 4 to 3 triumph.

The see-saw battle was the opener in a three-of-five series, with the second game scheduled here tomorrow night. The teams move to Hershey Saturday.

Al Sauers defeated Scott Champman of Fostoria in the light-heavyweight division in what Mansfielders called the best bout of the night.

Bob Miller, 146, won the decision over Herb Benedict of Marion, and Frank Truly, 135, drew a bye into the finals.

Bob Garber lost a close verdict to Dan Matthews, Marion, at 145 pounds, and Chester Miller dropped the duke to Joe White, Marion, at 112. Bob Johnson, C. C. C. camper, lost to Howard Hodges, Marion, at 135.

The Mansfielders return to Marion for the championship bouts tomorrow night.

CARBETTA LOSES

Pearson Fails to Halt Sox

Reds Smart Under 10-4 Beating By Boston.

DOTHAN, Ala.—(UP)—The Cincinnati Reds, smarting under a 10-4 walloping by the Boston Red Sox moved on to Fort Benning, Ga., today for the eighth of a 16-game series with the American leaguers, hopeful that there will be an improvement over the dismal performance of yesterday.

Yesterday's loss snapped a three-game winning streak for the Reds.

The Sox got to four Redleg hurlers for 14 hits and nine walks while Jack Wilson and Bill Fleming held the world's champions to nine hits, one of them a home run by Bill Werber. Sammy Hale, the Red Sox third baseman, also hit one for the circuit off Witt Guise, one of the four unlucky Red hurlers.

Monte Pearson, the former Yankee, started for the Reds, but was waved to the showers at the end of the first frame after the Sox had touched him for four runs and two hits.

Junior Thompson took over the assignment then and lasted for five innings during which Boston collected three more runs. Guise went to the mound in the seventh and yielded three walks and four hits, including Hal's homer, Bob Logan finished for the Reds and ended the Red Sox scoring.

The Reds scored in the first after Werber doubled and McCormick singled to drive him in. In the sixth a single by McCormick, a walk and an error by Hale gave the Reds another run and in the seventh inning Lombardi singled and came in on Werber's homer.

Elmer Riddle will work the game today for the Reds and Mike Ryba was due to start for the Red Sox.

KEPT BUSY

HOUSTON, Tex. —(AP)— The Boston Bees still are talking about the managerial debut of Johnny Cooney, veteran outfielder-coach. Taking a squad to Austin to play the University of Texas, Cooney didn't have to do much as manager, but he was kept busy as traveling secretary, trainer, batting practice pitcher and reserve outfielder. He also got one hit in the 8-1 victory.

Frisch Depends On Fire And Spirit To Boost Bucs

FRANKIE FRISCH

(AP Feature Service)

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. — Manager Frankie Frisch, who lifted the Pittsburgh Pirates from sixth to fourth place in his first year as their pilot, plans to move right on from there. Anyone who knows the Fordham flash or his record can be certain of that.

"Fourth place? Hell, no. We're going on up or know the reason why," stormed the fiery pilot, who has lost none of the zip and charge that has characterized his career since the day he stepped off the Fordham university campus in 1919 and became an instant sensation with John McGraw's New York Giants.

There is a lot of the old McGraw in Frisch's leadership, plus Frankie's own indominatable spirit. He proved it as a Giant and during those hectic headache years as player-manager of the St. Louis gas house gang. And the way he took an old ball club, the Pirates, shook them up, added a bit of remodeling here and there, and went places last season shows it's still working.

"There never was a guy like McGraw," Frisch will say. "Hell, he'd never pamper anyone like some of these young fellows are today."

Frank isn't the pampering type, either. He must have something to back up his discipline, though, because an expected revolution in the Bucco camp last year failed to materialize.

"I try to treat the men fair, but I expect them to play baseball and be in shape. That isn't asking too much. It's their business to play and mine to see that they are fit to play."

A veteran of eight world series, four consecutive ones with the Giants in 1921-22-23-24, and four others with the Cardinals in 1928-30-31-34, Frisch is itching to see his Pirates in another classic.

He is proud of his achievements in these world championships. And he has a right to his pride. As a money-player, he was a manager's dream. He played a record 50 games in world series competition. He holds the record for most runs scored, 41; the most hits, 58; the most two-baggers, 10. And with Jimmy Foxx, he holds the distinction of having scored two runs in one inning. His all-time, all-year batting mark is the impressive figure of .316.

No wonder the Flash expects a lot fro his players. And no wonder the great McGraw stamped him as one of the greatest natural players ever to perform on the diamond.

That blazing speed in his legs has long since gone, but he still has the same punch and drive in his heart. He's turned grey on his head, but he has plenty of grey-matter inside that skull. The Flash will have another pennant-winner some day, if he has to get out there and play himself.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—Only 16 guys showed up for spring football practice at Carnegie Tech, and they're threatening to call the whole thing off. Same day, 42 turned out at much smaller La-Salle college. Mioland, Charles S. Howard's "big pine from Oregon," is enroute east to Pimlico and the $20,000 Dixie Handicap, May 7. . . . Six of last year's Massillon high football stars are ticketed for Ohio State. . . . Business notes: The fistic firm of Eddie Mead and Henry Armstrong cleaned up $300,000 in 67 fights: Jack Dempsey's refereeing tours net him three grand a week, and Lefty O'Doul's share of the San Francisco pub which bears his name was $18,000 last year.

But old Diz can show up by the dawn's early light.

THEATERS

Creates Country.

The business of creating a "mythical kingdom" in these times of international strife is not an easy one, Hollywood Producer Edward Small discovered when he started to make "The Son of Monte Cristo," currently showing at the Ohio. Although the story takes place in the era of the American Civil war there was always the danger that some remote country might claim that the locals in the story resembles it and file diplomatic protest. In this particular kingdom, Joan Bennett plays the glamorous Duchess Zona while Louis Hayward has the romantic lead as a swashbuckling adventurer who plots with a dictator's enemies to overthrow the regime. Theodore von Eltz, Jack Mulhall and Montagu Love are in the cast.

Waterfront Setting.

Rollicking comedy, "The Great Mr. Nobody," playing at the Madison has a waterfront set that supplies considerable punch to the picture, a scene in which Eddie Albert as a classified ad salesman prepares to "wipe up" his boss, John Litel. Playing the kind of a guy, who would rather day-dream than sell, Albert is supported in his inactivity by Alan Hale. Joan Leslie is the girl who thinks he is somebody. The co-attraction, "Sleepers West," is a mystery thriller featuring Lloyd Nolan as a two-fisted sleuth. Lynn Bari, Mary Beth Hughes and Edward Brophy are cast

Tenement Thriller.

Drama of the wrong side of New York is "East of the River," playing at the Ritz. Woven around a tenement jungle the picture gives John Garfield, who actually hails from the same setting, opportunity to portray life as he knows it. As the son of an Italian woman, played by Marjorie Rambeau, Garfield deceives his mother into thinking of him as a California orange grower when all the time he is lodged in San Quentin. His release and life afterward furnish excitement for all characters concerned. Brenda Marshall and William Lundigan have prominent roles. Film No. 2 is a re-issue of "The 13th Guest."

Tricky Driving.

Mystery comedy, "You're Out of Luck," showing at the Park gives Frankie Darro a chance for some tricky automobile driving. As an elevator boy he tracks down a murderer with the aid of a friend and the police. Mantan Moreland, colored comic, spices the picture with laughs. Others in the cast are Vicki Lester, Kay Sutton and Tristram Coffin. "Girls of the Road," the second picture, shows Ann Dvorak as the daughter of a governor, who sets out to live among waifs of the road in order to effect rehabilitation for many of them.

Unusual Circumstance.

From nineteenth century France and America, Bette Davis moves forward in time and eastward in space to the present day and Straits Settlement on Malay Peninsula for her role in "The Letter," now showing at the Majestic. As the Somerset Maugham heroine, the star is faced with murder and a series of complicating circumstances including the humbling of herself before an Eurasian woman. Herbert Marshall plays the husband and Gale Sondergaard the Eurasian. Marjorie Rambeau in "Tugboat Annie Sails Again," the co-feature, begins where Marie Dressler and the first "Annie" picture left off.

Swimming Star Of Past Happy Down On Farm

MONROE, Mich. —(U.P.)— The only splash that former national swimming champion, Halino Tomska Tullis, hears now is the gurgle of cows in their watering trough—but that's good enough for her.

Mrs. Tullis, who won national championships in the 100-, 200-, and 440-yard free style events, is now living on a farm with her husband, Fred. She's far away from the metropolis of Detroit and the Detroit Athletic club pool. The lowing of the cattle and the clucking of white leghorn hens have supplanted the shot of the starter's gun.

But it's all right with her, she says. Living on the farm is a less restricted life and many trouble's that beset a person in the big city somehow vanish according to the former champion.

Mrs. Tullis was married last October at which time she gave up her swimming to take agricultural courses at Michigan State College. Fred decided I needed to learn more about a farm, so I was going to the source.

GETS REQUESTS

Mayor Says Reservations Are Made for America First Meet.

Mayor William J. Locke announced today that he had received 11 requests for tickets for the America First mass meeting to be held Palm Sunday at Cleveland arena in that city.

Gold Star Mothers and parents of members of U. S. armed forces had been invited by the organization which is headed by isolationist leaders.

Included on the speaking program will be Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, and many other leading isolationists protesting any action which might lead this country into war.

The mayor said that arrangements would be made to charter a bus if enough people requested tickets for the meeting. The America First committee has asked Mayor Locke to handle ticket requests.

Domestic money orders in the United States were first issued on November 1, 1864.

AIRLINE PLANS TO USE BLOCK SIGNAL SYSTEM

TWA to Install New Operating Devices at Five Major Airports.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. —(U.P.)— Plans to apply the "block signal" system to airline operations through an invention of potential military value were announced here by Paul E. Richter, executive vice president of Transcontinental & Western Air, Inc.

The device gives flight dispatchers a visual and automatic record of transport planes operating in areas under their control. At present they depend on radio devices from pilots to record the position of planes aloft.

A series of tracks are fitted on a panel, each track representing a directional airway. The tracks work on long, electrically driven worms whose speed is regulated to conform to the ground speed of the plane. A small brass block, representing the plane, operates along each track.

The miniature "plane" begins moving along the track at the moment a transport plane leaves a terminal. Speed of the worm is adjusted to the pilots flight plan, which allows for weather conditions, cargo and gasoline load in pre-determining the transport's true speed.

Slots set at intervals on the airway track represent check points, or warning blocks, and each is set slightly beyond the plane's check point to allow the pilot a few seconds tolerance to make his radio report. As the miniaure plane approaches this block the dispatch office radioman, receiving a check point message from the pilot, closes the block, allowing the "plane" to pass on to the next check point on the dispatch board.

If the miniature plane reaches the block before the pilot has reported it drops into the slot and rings an alarm. Inquiry is dispatched immediately to the plane aloft and as soon as the pilot reports reaching his check point the miniature plane is placed on the track again and starts moving toward the next block. When it passes a block it automatically sets the block against any plane which may be following.

Richter said it has planned to install the devices in TWA operations offices in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco, with a master board in the airline's headquarters at Kansas City.

Postoffice Clerk Jots Down a Few Postal Oddities

LOS ANGELES — (INS) — The man who makes a hobby of publicizing the world's biggest business the United States postal service, details a number of postal oddities he has gathered since he began his hobby five years ago.

He is J. B. Trapp, now a clerk in the Los Angeles postoffice, who turns out a weekly newspaper cartoon on postal oddities and prepares two postal radio programs a week.

Here are some of the oddities. Bing Crosby was once a postal clerk; the first American airmail was in 1793, when an attempt was made to send a letter of George Washington to France by balloon; the postoffice sells 35 types of stamps not usable in payment of postage; business letters were written in wet clay by early Persians, Egyptians and Babylonian merchants and baked inside bricks.

Chinese used "airmail" centuries ago by writing messages on rice paper and fastening them to the legs of grey geese.

POPULATION OF THIS TOWN 10

CHEBOYGAN, Mich. — (U.P.) — Office holding is nearly a required affair in Cheboygan county's Maple Grove township.

Census figures showed that Maple Grove's population of 10 was the smallest of any Michigan township. Families left when the timber was cut from this once active lumbering area, and the government bought up much of the land for conservation projects.

Now once a year the adults go to the polls and vote for township officers. Nearly every eligible citizen holds some post.

NEW WAY TO RESIGN

HARRISBURG, Pa. — (INS) — After 23-year-old Charles A. Smith, a hotel porter, wrecked a guest's car while on a secret joyride he figured it was little use to return to work. So he tendered his "resignation" by sending a sister to his employer with his porter's uniform.

FEAR SPIES AT PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA —(U.P.)— Some of the World war precautions against sabotage and espionage have been taken at the Port of Philadelphia.

As in 1917 new badges and identification cards, designed to prevent counterfeiting, have been issued to custom officials and customs guards and inspectors have been ordered never to board ships alone or go below decks unless in pairs, port officials said.

The added precautions were taken at the request of British officials who warned that an attempt to damage British ships might be made by persons posing as port authorities.

RAIL SHARES ON SKIDS AS MART SHOWS VARIETY

Bonds Show Progress While Balkan Jitters Cut Down Operations.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Rail shares slipped today in a mixed stock market.

Failure of the share market to follow the spring rise in rail bonds and commodities was regarded as discouraging in some quarters and the tension in the Balkans still kept many traders from operating.

Heading downward were U. S. Steel, Southern railway, Douglas Aircraft, International Nickle, Chrysler and Texas Corp.

Many rail bonds made further progress on the upside. Major commodities tended lower.

A strong upward trend in rail traffic cheered followers of carrier securities.

Coincident with signs of firming of crude oil prices, gasoline statistics revealed a sharp increase in demand and little further gain in motor fuel inventory.

SUSPECTS ADMIT ROBBERIES HERE

Coshocton Youths, Arrested In Michigan, Confess Snatching Purses In Mansfield.

Guernsey county authorities yesterday by Jane Cox, his 14-year-old wife, and by Eileen Sullivan, 16, was arrested in Coshocton last night after, his father informed authorities that the boy wanted to give himself up. He was taken into custody by the sheriff and Prosecutor Carl M. Patterson said he would question the youth today.

Detective William Reed of Youngstown, according to news dispatches from Coshocton, said that two young girls being held at Cambridge, O., as highway robbery accessories, charged in signed statements that one of two men companions shot and killed Mrs. Foley, March 10, when she resisted a youth who attempted to snatch her purse. Mrs. Foley was the mother of nine children.

Cox was sought by officers in Ohio and Michigan following his escape from Michigan state troopers after a gun battle near Kalamazoo. During the Michigan gun fight, police wounded and captured Bickel, Cox's companion. The latter was confined to a hospital in Albion, Mich. Both Cox and Bickel were wanted in Michigan in connection with purse snatchings, it was learned.

Prosecutor Raymond Fox of Kalamazoo county said Bickel admitted he and Cox staged 32 purse-snatchings and the burglary of a filling station in 16 Ohio towns but denied they ever used a gun.

He said one theft, at Dover, was committed while citizens were holding a meeting nearby planning means of capturing the gang. Two sawed-off shotguns were found in a stolen automobile abandoned by Bickel and two companions after the series of purse snatchings in three Michigan cities last Tuesday night.

Pictures of Bickel and Randles received here by Police Chief Bates from Kalamazoo authorities could not be identified today by two Mansfield women who were slugged and robbed Feb. 5. Mrs. O. G. Place, 101 Glenwood boulevard, and Mrs. L. J. Murphy, 153 Arthur avenue, told Officer Hartnett they did not recognize the men. Mrs. Edith Ernsberger, 172 Raleigh avenue, the other Mansfield woman, had not seen the pair when attacked.

STRIKERS WALK OUT AT FORD DEARBORN PLANT

Work Stoppage Hits Soft Coal Industry as Rioting Closes Allis-Chalmers Factory.

the peace officers available." To prevent further bloodshed, he announced, he directed the company to cease operations.

For 10 weeks CIO workers have been on strike there, demanding a union shop and wage adjustments. The factory was reopened last Friday at the request of federal officials, to speed the output of $45,000,000 in vital defense orders.

Governor Heil had come to the plant to address the men from a sound truck after rioting had occurred the previous night. But even as he spoke strikers smashed through a company gate and the trouble was on again.

The Kentucky shootings were the only reported cases of major violence attending the soft coal mining stoppage.

As coal mining came to a full halt in virtually the entire eight-state Appalachian district and in many other sections as well, a federal conciliator assured the public "there is no cause for alarm," and expressed belief that "an equitable agreement" between miners and operators could be reached within 48 hours.

The conciliator, Dr. John R. Steelman of the labor department, said that if an agreement could not be reached in that time he believed a temporary arrangement could be made to resume operations. President Roosevelt had urged the union and management to settle their differences and prevent any delays to the defense program.

The CIO United Mine Workers, headed by John L. Lewis, seek $1 a day wage increases, a guarantee of 200 days work a year, and paid annual vacations. About 400,000 miners are affected by the negotiations.

The stoppage theoretically became effective Monday midnight, but since April 1, anniversary of the eight-hour day, is a miners' holiday, the real effects did not become evident until this morning.

Senator Vinson (D., Ga.) introduced legislation yesterday which would empower the government to take over defense factories if the president found that "an existing or threatened failure of production . . . is such as to interfere with, or hamper, delay or impede the national defense."

But Mr. Roosevelt, at a press conference, said the new mediation board was getting along all right and he saw no reason for legislative steps to curb strikes.

Federal conciliators meanwhile announced settlement of a labor dispute at the Breeze corporation plant, Newark, N. J., and a tentative agreement in a three-weeks strike of 1,500 workers at the J. G. Brill company plant at Philadelphia.

The Breeze dispute, involving conflicting demands of AFL and CIO unionists, had threatened to tie up production of important aircraft equipment.

Details of the Brill agreement with a CIO local were not announced. The strikers had demanded higher wages, a closed shop and paid vacations. The company makes gun mounts.

A strike threatened at the Westinghouse Air Brake company, Pittsburgh, where 4,500 employes produce most of the switching equipment for the nation's railroads. The CIO wants higher wages, paid vacations and seniority rights.

A strike for higher wages is tentatively set for midnight tonight by AFL tugboats workers in New York harbor.

The national defense mediation board, already at work on the International Harvester company and Cornell-Dubilier strikes, got another assignment from Labor Secretary Perkins yesterday. She certified for the board's attention a strike of AFL lumber workers against the Snoqualmie Falls (Wash.) Lumber company. Wages, hours and union membership are involved.

Immediate threat of an AFL machinists strike for higher wages in San Francosco bay region shipyards was relieved today. The Bay Cities Metal Trades council withheld sanction of such a walkout.

About 3,500 machinists would have been affected.

Light Plant Workers Strike At Columbus

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Thirty-four municipal light plant employes and 17 in the city building department struck today after city council voted to postpone consideration of wage increases.

Robert N. Tucker, light plant superintendent, said current would be supplied city departments and customers, unless "trouble should develop."

Striking linemen listened to a plea by Tucker that they continue at work until differences were adjusted and then went to headquarters of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers local No. 848.

The plant continued operating and no picket lines were formed.

Request Needed To Call Out Troops

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The White House today reminded governors of strike-ridden states that the president cannot order federal troops to police labor disputes unless a formal appeal is directed to the chief executive.

This declaration was made by White House Secretary Stephen T. Early as he disclosed that a telegram to the president from Gov. Julius Heil of Wisconsin concerning the riotous Allis-Chalmers strike in Milwaukee had been turned over to "interested departments of the government," presumably the OPM, justice, war, navy and labor departments.

Early declined to be drawn into a discussion of what policy Mr. Roosevelt would pursue if a governor formally requested troops, but the White House secretary did point out that Heil, in his telegram, had made no such request, merely asserting that the situation in Milwaukee was "absolutely out of hand."

WIDENING JOB STARTS MAY 1

SHELBY—The widening project for Main street scheduled to open here this month has been set for May 1, city officials disclosed today.

The project will widen Main street an average of three feet on both sides from Wentz avenue to the New York Central railroad.

More than 100 WPA employes are expected to be given work on the project, city officials said.

INVESTIGATING AXIS OFFICIALS

and planes 110 miles to sea in an unsuccessful effort to overtake two German ships which fled without sailing papers, and used a cruiser to prevent the escape of two others which later were fired by their crews.

Armed Peruvian troops—"as a safety measure"—seized two Luft-Hansa transport planes and the German air line's hangars and workshops at Lima Tambo airport.

The Peruvian government also barred the German news agency "Transocean" from further operations in the country. The reasons given that its dispatches were "spreading news that may disturb the good international relations of Peru" and might also "affect our democratic institutions."

For the moment, however, the United States was the only target of such Axis reaction as materialized. The Rome radio said the week-end ship seizures here bespoke President Roosevelt's desire to create a "situation even nearer a state of war." The newspaper Il Popolo Di Roma used the phrase: "an act of piracy." Both organs charged that the purpose was to assist Britain.

The administration, meanwhile, gave no hint of its plans for the ultimate disposition of the Axis merchantmen or of the 39 Danish ships seized with them.

Federal attorneys, it was disclosed, already have started prosecution proceedings against the alleged saboteurs at Boston and at Mobile, Ala.

Axis Legations Ready With Mexican Protest

MEXICO CITY—(U.P.)—The German and Italian legations prepared bitter protests today against Mexico's seizure of 12 Axis cargo vessels.

It was understood in diplomatic quarters that equally bitter protests would be made to all western hemisphere governments which followed the example of the United States by taking over German and Italian ships.

Dispatches from other Latin American capitals reported that Axis diplomats and pro-Axis circles throughout Latin America were amazed by the celerity with which the United States' "neighbors to the south" modeled their action upon hers.

PATROL SUBMITS MARCH REPORT

Lists 33 Accidents During Month, Four of Them Fatal.

The Mansfield sub-station of the Ohio State Highway patrol reported a total of 33 accidents and 78 arrests investigated in the Mansfield area during March.

Fatalities in the district totaled four during March as compared with one during February. There were 11 injury accidents and 18 accidents involving property damage.

Violation of speed limits led the arrest charges with a total of 25; stop sign violations totaled 16, closely followed by 15 arrests for overloaded trucks. Unsafe driving, improper lighting of motor vehicles, and other charges lifted the arrest total to 78.

Danish and Axis Crews at Ellis Island

After seizing 69 Danish, German and Italian vessels in American waters as a "protective" measure, the U. S. took over custody of the crews preliminary to proceedings to send them back to Europe. The warrants issued against the crews charge them with overstaying the 60 days which foreign seamen are permitted to remain in U. S. ports. In this picture, crewmen from Danish and Axis ships seized in the east are shown walking to headquarters at Ellis Island, New York bay. The German and Italian governments have demanded return of the ships and release of the crews.

about 8 p. m. yesterday. They said they understood there would be a mass meeting of employes this afternoon to hear a report on the negotiations and to determine future action in the event an agreement cannot be reached today.

Company representatives said the workers walked out last night without notice and they had not been informed of any demands of the union.

It was understood, however, that the workers are asking a general wage increase. Some of the pickets at the plant said today they had received pay cuts since January.

The walk-out was the first to affect an entire industry in Mansfield since 1938 when the coal truck drivers were on strike for several days. The Humphryes plant has received no orders for national defense equipment.

Local 756 of the UERMW claims a 98 per cent membership of factory employes at the Humphreys plant. An election scheduled for March 17 at the plant by the National Labor Relations board the question of a bargaining agent was called off when the company agreed to recognize the union as sole bargaining agent. Since then, company officials said, negotiations on wages and working conditions have been going on with the union representatives.

Mule? No Thanks, Wrestler's Toe Will Hurt Enough

LIMA —(INS)— If being kicked by a mule hurts as badly as being kicked by a wrestler, Albert Guyer, rookie Lima patrolman, wants none of it.

Guyer who worked his first day as policeman yesterday was nursing a long gash in his chin today, a wound that required six stitches to close. A toenail of wrestler Martino Angelo made the gash.

Angelo was paired with Antone Leone against Paul Orth and Mike Kilonis last night in a match that ended in a disagreement. When a fan took a punch at Leone, the new patrolman, not in uniform, pulled out a blackjack and attempted to stop the disturbance.

But Angelo didn't know Guyer was an officer and he let go a lusty kick, clipping Guyer on the chin. The wrestler was released on $50 bail for a hearing next Tuesday on an assault charge.

congratulation to Yugoslavia's young King Peter II, who seized the throne last Thursday in a coup d'etat against the pro-Axis regime of Regent Prince Paul.

An eight-minute air raid alarm sounded in Skoplje, Yugoslavia, as three foreign planes reconnoitered at great height over the city this noon, and an official declared:

"War may come to us any day this way."

Skoplje lies in southern Yugoslavia, in the heart of the Vardar river valley which military experts have said would offer the best strategic route for a Nazi attack on Greece.

Diplomatic maneuvering kept abreast of warlike preparations in the Balkans today, with Yugoslavia apparently intent on plumbing all aspects of the tangled international situation before clarifying her attitude toward the Axis powers.

Germany watched the Yugoslav government's actions with signs of increasing annoyance.

The well-informed Nazi commentary, Dienst Aus Deutschland, declared frankly that German-Yugoslav relations steadily were growing more serious. The reich government, this source said, was provoked especially by allegedly increasing acts of violence against German and Hungarian nationals in Yugoslavia.

There were strong indications Yugoslavia was seeking some sort of agreement with Soviet Russia and Turkey which would strengthen her hand in dealing with the Axis. Milan Gabrilovic, Yugoslav minister without portfolio, returned last night from conversations in Moscow and Ankara, but the result of the talks was not disclosed immediately.

Reports also persisted that British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who conferred with King George of Greece yesterday in Athens, would go to Belgrade soon with Gen. Sir John G. Dill, chief of the British imperial general staff, for talks with Yugoslav leaders.

German planes and submarines, continuing their attacks upon Britain's vital supply lines, were credited by the Nazi high command with the destruction of 11 more merchant vessels totaling 77,300 tons.

Six of the vessels—all large tankers—were sunk by Nazi combat planes yesterday at the entrance to St. George's channel between England and Ireland, the daily war bulletin declared.

Five other ships totaling 35,300 tons were said to have been sunk by a single submarine in attacks upon a convoy in the North Atlantic.

The British admiralty announced that naval aircraft of the East Indies command had sunk an Italian destroyer of the 1,526-ton Pantera class.

Report Message Being Flown to Soviet

ISTANBUL — (U.P.) — A special Yugoslav plane was reported today to be flying to Moscow with an important message from the Belgrade government to the Soviet regime.

The Yugoslav plane was reported to have flown from Belgrade to Istanbul this morning and to have taken off on the next stage of its flight to Moscow after a brief stopover here.

It was understood that two passengers were aboard the plane, a new counsellor for the Yugoslav legation at Moscow and an air attache who were said to be taking the communication to Russia. There was no indication of the nature of the Yugoslav message although reports have circulated without official confirmation of exchanges between the two countries regarding the possibility of a pact of some kind.

Gitlow Tells How Communists Planned Eventual Overthrow of U. S. Government.

Bridges came to the United States 21 years ago.

Gitlow, testified in the second day of the hearing that the Internationale ordered:

1. Creation of a Negro republic from the southern states when the American revolution comes;

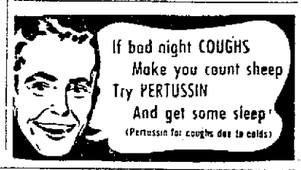

2. Financing of Nicaraguan rebels who fought against American marines;

3. Communist control of labor unions and separation from the A. F. L. which "culminated in success when the Congress for Industrial Organization was formed."

The Communist party of the United States, Gitlow testified, had no choice but to obey these orders reached in sessions of the Internationale in Moscow.

The government was seeking to show that anyone belonging to a Communist-controlled organization was through this chain under the direction of the Internationale.

It accuses Bridges of having belonged to the Communist party; the Industrial Workers of the World and the Marine Workers' Industrial Union. The Australian-born labor leader repeatedly has denied being a Communist, but during his 1939 deportation hearing testfied he belonged to the I. W. W. for a few months in 1921 until he learned its objectives, and during the 1934 west coast waterfront strike urged sailors to join the M. W. I. U.

GALION SCHOOL BOARD CONFERS WITH CITIZENS

Curriculum Discussed During Meeting; Organization of Committee Suggested.

GALION—Much of the time of the Galion Board of Education meeting, Tuesday night, was spent in discussing with a committee of citizens, various phases of the Galion school curriculum.

Those present expressed their views of present day methods being used in the educational program of the school system. The committee had been called by Supt. O. E. Hill to meet with the board. So much enthusiasm was manifested by the group that it was decided that other similar meetings will be held in the near future. It was suggested that an advisory committee of citizens be selected to meet with the school administration to discuss and plan for the various courses offered in the school system.

Parents who were present at the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Berting, Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Heiser, Bert Wilson, Mrs. Russell Stewart and Mrs. James Gill.

Some of the parents present would have the school system return to the "Three R's" in teaching and leave out the modern methods such as visual education, radio, and extra curricular activities. It was expressed that such studies as Latin, geometry, algabra, and Spanish be compulsory subjects for everyone and not just elective to the students taking the academic courses.

It was pointed out that "seeing" increases interest in many of the subjects, and that the visual education program was beneficial in making some courses more appealing to the student.

The board, during the business session of the meeting, approved bills for payment in the amount of $2,000 for the month. It also authorized the purchase of curtains, draperies and other equipment for the Junior High school auditorium.

The purchase of welders, a power hack saw, shaper and lathes for the vocational shop department itemized in the list approved by the U. S. Office of Education in connection with the National Defense program.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 2, 1941.

Clean-up time is coming along—in which connection everybody should remember that "Grime Doesn't Pay."

Since it has been disclosed that Death Valley Scotty's gold mine is a dream it might be a good idea to check up on Fort Knox.

A Smithsonian authority on such subjects inclines to belief that heredity has no great bearing on intelligence—so why family tree may produce a little sap.

Coal Is Defense Essential

ONLY the personal intervention of President Roosevelt, with his plea for "uninterrupted operation" based on national defense needs, gives hope of avoiding what might otherwise be a long-drawn-out strike involving several hundred thousand bituminous coal miners.

Coal mining has so long been a breeder of labor troubles, with such regular recurrence of strikes and strike threats that it may sometimes be wondered if reasonable rules of employer-employe relationships can ever be made to apply equably in this industry—with due regard for the public interest in avoiding prohibitive prices.

Coal production and distribution is so peculiarly seasonal that full understanding of the problems involved is difficult for persons not closely associated with the industry—as, for instance, the demand for guarantee of 200 working days a year, which seems to assume that long lay-off periods are common experience. Nor does the demand for $1 a day wage increase mean much to lay readers unless associated with total annual earnings and an estimate of living costs. As has been pointed out by President Roosevelt, it is vitally important just now to maintain a steady flow of coal from the mines, so that defense needs for this fuel can be met.

But it is probably equally important, from the standpoint of miners, operators and the public welfare, that some permanent solution of mine labor controversies also be found, so that arbitration rather than strikes or threats of strikes shall hereafter become the method of settling differences as to wages, hours, regularity of employment, vacations, etc.

Nor should this apply only to the coal mining industry. Surely, with their interlocking interests, fair-minded employes and employers should be able to devise plans by which friendly discussion of differences will result in agreements without resort to strikes and their resultant ill feeling and heavy losses to all concerned.

While present arguments against industrial strikes are directed specifically to those which are retarding production of military equipment, it is not too early to suggest that the post-war era may well be looked toward as a logical time for further development of processes of arbitration as a substitute for the strike weapon, which labor leaders seem to regard as essential—but which is now proving a great national menace.

New Recreational Area

PUTTING aside domestic and foreign problems, for the moment, and having a look closer home, it is gratifying to note the progress being made toward development of the Charles Mill region as a convenient recreational spot for residents of Mansfield and vicinity.

A speaker at a Liberty park meeting Monday night gave much interesting information on this subject and it may be anticipated that the next few years will bring increasing appreciation of this added vicinity attraction.

Availability of cottage locations, in appealing surroundings and with ready access to good fishing, is an innovation which promises to attract considerable attention.

With local fishing facilities heretofore confined to small lakes and vicinity streams, it is rather difficult to realize that thousands of acres of water and many miles of shore line are now within easy motoring distance of Mansfield.

Childhood's Changing 'Views'

AN INTERESTING field of study for parents, educators, and any adults so fortunate as to be associated with children and young men and women, it to keep tab on the stages of mental development and character-building through which a normal child passes in reaching maturity.

Given the elements of heredity and environment which ordinarily contribute to physical, mental and spiritual balance, thinking processes at various ages are sufficiently routine to be safely predictable.

Some such idea appears to be in the mind of the father of the Oberlin co-ed whose 19-year-old mentality evolved a marital theory which attracted more than deserved attention when it was printed in the Oberlin Review, a student newspaper a few days ago.

Quoting her father, the youthful co-ed said: "He told me I probably would change my views as I grow older—and I probably shall."

As long as the girl suffers no harm from her 19-year-old "views" on the subject of marriage, and if publicizing her immature ideas does no harm to other impressionable youngsters, no serious results are likely to accrue.

It might be well, however, to suggest adult supervision of material used in student publications—lack of which seems quite obvious in the present instance.

One City's Accomplishment

THE WORLD has been discovering lately, with surprise and admiration, that St. Louis, long known as one of the smokiest cities in the world, is now among the cleanest. The improvement was actually accomplished in less than one year, "between two winter heating seasons." Such success should inspire other American cities.

The campaign started on a November day, year before last, when the city smoke made the streets so dark that motorists had to use their headlights till 11 a. m. There has been nothing like that during the past winter. Smoke has been reduced nearly two-thirds, in a time of increasing industrial activity.

There is a saving of $8,000,000 a year in smoke damage. There is also a trek back to the city by families that had gone to live in the suburbs.

How was it accomplished? It was not done by outsiders, but by the city itself, using its own initiative and resources. Press, city government, business and industry and householders co-operated fully. So success came, as it always does in municipal matters, when all work in harmony for a definite purpose.

WHILE BRITAIN BURNS

Perplexed By Relief Priorities

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WHILE warmly commendatory of charity to victims of overseas war conditions, State Secretary Cordell Hull wants it so systematized as to make it 100 per cent effective. Besides the Red Cross, it seems that the number of private relief agencies runs into the hundreds.

Acting each on its own, Secretary Hull's idea is that they tend to fall over one another, cluttering up the job at which they all mean so well.

That's why, upon Cordell's recommendation, President Roosevelt recently named his three-man national committee to give collective direction to the miscellaneous organizations' efforts.

The chairman is Joseph E. Davies, American ambassador to Belgium until the Germans overran the country. Associated with him are Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, and President Frederick P. Keppel of the Carnegie corporation.

Besides funneling foreign relief into the right channels, the committee will have charge of the task of shaping the direction of contributions for the benefit of our selectees' training centers here at home. This latter may not be relief, in its strict sense, but F. D. R. and Secretary Hull think it needs attending to, to make the gifts count up to a maximum.

You don't get far into a discussion of anything relating to today's overseas situation and our own defensive preparations without running into the question of priorities.

Who Comes First?

Who's to be provided for first, if supply sources or transportation facilities are skimpy.

It's quite a problem in connection with shipments abroad. Emergency-stricken peoples across the oceans holler for many sorts of stuff faster than we can produce it, and if we can produce it sufficiently, there's the everlasting difficulty of scaring up enough boats to deliver it in.

It may appear that this should not be much of a puzzle relative to deliveries of presents to our domestic selectees' encampments.

Yet it may be, too, even as to them.

We've got at least one domestic priority already. Aluminum's priority-ized in military aviation's favor. Our flyers get the first crack at it, and pots-and-pans manufacturers can have only what little of it's left over, if any, to supply our housewives with kitchen-ware.

Of course, I don't think that priority will be so interpreted as to deny cooking utensils to our selectees' camps, but it may be interpreted in a fashion to limit 'em on various other things that relief societies would like to send to them.

Now, this is an extreme and impossible illustration—

But suppose that the priority-fixers were to say, "Here's a charity outfit that seeks to give quantities of cigarets to our selectees. Well, cigaret-making absorbs part of our productive capacity, all of which we need for defensive purposes. Therefore, we deny priority to would-be relief contributors' cigaret offerings to our selectees' concentrations."

No, I know it couldn't happen.

Nevertheless, that's the theory of priorities.

Advisory Only.

Of course, the new Davies-Taft-Keppel committee isn't as dictatorial a setup as the Knudsen-Hillman Office of Production Management's priorities division. An OPM division's decision is a mandate. The Davies-Taft-Keppel outfit is only advisory.

Hills to Climb

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

life—your own, everyone's. Those, for instance, by Arthur Guiterman:

"GOD, GIVE ME HILLS TO CLIMB AND STRENGTH FOR CLIMBING!"

There's not a man nor woman—no matter how ignorant, desperate or calloused—who won't quicken to that cry or understand its spiritual meaning.

Hills—challenge to both flesh and spirit; in all the world there's nothing lovelier nor more deeply significant. The cool, clean heights of them rising above the muck and murk of the lower plain, as fine, brave thoughts rise above the baser urgings. The proud joy of mounting them, as though one conquered more than rock and dirt with each triumphant step . . . conquered, also, one's own laziness and cowardice.

No wonder men have always loved the hills . . . sung of them . . . sought them for power and peace. Old Moses, climbing Sinai's and Pisgah's lonely peaks, to find the truth and view the Promised Land. King David, crying from his shamed and darkened years: "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my strength." Christ, bowed in bloody sweat on Olivet, raised an Golgotha to His everlasting life. Always the hills have been a symbol of man's bravest, brightest dreams.

To live tall—so tall the little hates and hurts can't cripple or the little fears betray. To live hard—despising softness and safety, seeking those high adventures which are reserved alone for man, lifting him above the brute.

How often we've longed to live like that, you and I, with our heads in the stars and storms!

"GOD, GIVE ME HILLS TO CLIMB!"

So we all pray, and are sure that we want our prayer answered. And perhaps we do. But how often are we willing to pay the price? It's one thing for the delighted eye to see Mount Rainier's glorious, glistening crown and quite another for the pampered thigh to scale it.

And by the same token, it's easy enough to talk about living tall, and something else when it comes to performance. Then suddenly we go sour on the idea of all that danger and sacrifice, that loneliness and possible ridicule. Tomorrow, maybe.

Yet no one can know the beauty of the earth who has not climbed its mountains. And only those can realize the majesty of life who have dared to face its sacrifice, endure its solitude. A safe lot may be all very well for a slug or a clam, but it's no sort of existence for a MAN.

GOD: Lash my pride until it scorns cowardly safety. Stiffen my spine until it can endure the loneliness and pain which await all those who dare to live differently or dangerously. Break my heart until it opens to a wider vision than my own small happiness. And so, at last, lead me to follow where their heroic footsteps led who carved that first trail from the jungle to the stars.

Amen.

Byrd Expedition's Wind-up

Admiral Byrd's third Antarctic expedition, funded by New Deal appropriations totaling $521,000, has been on the South Polar ice-cap for two years. Byrd himself has been back for a year. His staff of aids, scientists and workers, in two groups of 25 men in the one case and 33 in the other, are now on the way home.

Nearly all the expedition's elaborate equipment is left behind. All, it is stated, including large food supplies, will "keep" indefinitely for the use of any other expedition though it may be years before another is undertaken. Possibly of irrecoverable burials in ice exists, of course. That the coming complete reports can demonstrate the worth, as a return on a half million of nation funds, looks extremely doubtful.—Detroit News.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Small Minority Hits Defense By Strikes, Slow-ups and Sabotage

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Interesting comparisons might be drawn from the behavior of the highly cultured, over-civilized Prince Paul, recently forced out of the Regency of Yugoslavia, and the behavior of the rough, uncultured peasants of Serbia. In fact, similar comparisons might be made with France, possibly even with other comfort-loving people.

Inside story of Prince Paul was that during the last war he went to England, while Prince Alexander, (later assassinated as King at Marseilles) struggled with his men over the Albanian Alps on the terrible retreat of 1915.

During that war Paul was asked many times to come back and don a uniform, but he remained in Oxford. He loved music, art, poetry, peace. He hated discomfort. And when Hitler demanded that Yugoslavia join the Axis, Paul preferred to take a chance on a peaceful future even if under Hitler.

There was nothing corrupt about Prince Paul (though this could not be said of certain cabinet ministers). He merely rebelled against the thought of picking up his government and living a hand-to-mouth existence while a temporary capital was set up in the mountains of central Serbia or on the plains of Macedonia. According to one diplomatic dispatch, the lack of plumbing in Monastir—where the new capital may be established—was especially repugnant to him.

On the other hand, Serb peasants knew both hardships, and what it was to fight in the last war. Of all the peoples who suffered from 1914 to 1918, none bled and died for their country more than the Serbs. Exactly one third of the population was lost in those four bloody years.

And the most significant thing about their decision last week was the fact that the Serbian people chose war, remembering 1914 and knowing that exactly the same fate awaited them again.

Nepotism Champion.

SENATOR DENNIS CHAVEZ was hitting closer to home than most people realized when, during the lend-lease debate, he asserted that passage of the aid-Britain measure would bankrupt the treasury.

If anyone has reason to grow excited about the possibility of a depleted treasury, it is the junior senator from New Mexico, who has more relatives on the public payroll than any man in congress. This is saying a lot because there are several mighty effective nepotists there.

It would take a corps of census tabulators to enumerate all the members of the Chavez clan who have public jobs in Washington and New Mexico, but here's a bird's-eye view of the most important:

Dennis Chavez, jr., son, secretary to his father.....$3,900

Dave Chavez, brother, New Mexico district judge $6,000

Barbara Sena, sister, teacher in a state school in New Mexico $1,800

Raymond Espinosa, brother-in-law, chief of a new alien investigating unit in the Justice department $6,500

Gilberto Espinosa, brother of Raymond, also on the Justice department payroll as Assistant U. S. Attorney for New Mexico...$4,800

Stanley Miller, son-in-law, attorney for the Rio Grande Conservancy District, a state-operated irrigation and drainage project financed largely with federal (RFC) funds $4,000

Reyes Sena, brother-in-law, WPA foreman in New Mexico $1,500

Reyes Sena, jr., nephew, clerk in general accounting office $1,620

Juan Nuanes, cousin, Public Works Administration clerk $1,800

John A. Werner, godfather, postmaster at Albuquerque $2,500

Total yearly "take," including Chavez's $10,000 senate salary $44,420

Labor Sabotage.

MOST tragic thing about the present chaotic labor situation is the black eye which a minority of labor is giving to their co-workers all over the country. In the majority of plants and shipyards, men are working without interruption.

But in certain key plants, so vital to the national defense that they could not have been picked by accident, a small minority have bogged down production. Sometimes this happens through strikes, sometimes through slowing-up and sabotage so deliberate that behind it must lurk a definite attempt by Communists to hold back national defense.

The navy, for instance, has reports of workmen repairing warships who sleep regularly in the turrets, then collect a full day's pay. Navy yards have had especial trouble with welders.

At the Boeing airplane plant in Seattle, a slow-up system is now under federal investigation. For months the war department has been at a loss to understand why more planes were not delivered from the Boeing plant. It finally has turned its sabotage suspicions over to the eagle eye of J. Edgar Hoover.

Next to hurting vital defense plans, most tragic result of this slow-up strategy is the effect upon the new draft army. When the men in the camps hear of civilian workmen getting shake-down wages for slow-up tactics, compared with their meager army pay, it doesn't make for good morale.

Employer Obstruction.

WHILE labor has been hitting the headlines for defense obstruction, less publicized but equally obstructive has been the attitude of certain business elements, among them the shipbuilders, who dickered endlessly with the U. S. Maritime Commission regarding the construction of 200 desperately needed cargo vessels.

This program was adopted in January, but to date the commission has not been able to complete negotiations for quite all the 200 ships.

The Bethlehem-Fairfield Shipyard, Inc., of Baltimore, for instance, battled the commission for two months over a fat fee.

The commission proposed a $110,000 base fee per ship, to be reduced to $60,000 if not delivered by a certain deadline, or increased to $140,000 if produced ahead of time. But Bethlehem rejected the penalty clause, vigorously insisting on a fixed fee regardless of when the ships were produced.

For weeks, while the shipping crisis daily grew more critical, the controversy raged. Finally, on March 18, the company backed down and accepted the commission's terms.

Under them Bethlehem-Fairfield stands to collect a total fee of $5,500,000 on the 50 ships assigned it. In addition, it also garnered a $7,838,000 government contract for thirteen ways and other construction paraphernalia.

Meanwhile, two precious months went by and not a lick was turned on these frantically needed cargo vessels.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Ken Delmar, the radio actor who is best known for his work on the Court of Missing Heirs programs, sold his Connecticut home recently to a young married couple and received in down payment a check for $500.

The couple was to move in at once but when three weeks had passed and the new owners had not taken possession Delmar began to make inquiries. He tried first to ascertain their whereabouts, then the whereabouts of the girl's mother, but with no success.

Next day he read in the papers that Jan Valtin, author of the autobiography now sweeping the country, "Out of the Night," was a man named Richard Krebs. Krebs was the man who had bought Delmar's house. But the publicity had driven him into hiding, and today he and his wife are still in a hideaway apartment in New York. His reluctance to move into his new home is alleged to be based on (1) fear of possible deportation proceedings, and (2) revenge motives by agents of foreign powers.

THE newest trend in publishing circles is toward illustrated books, such as were so popular 20 years ago. This is especially true in the case of historical novels and biographies. A man who has had a great deal to do with this is Lieutenant Colonel John W. Thomason, Jr., who is an artist as well as an author of ability. Thomason illustrates his own books, his latest being "Lone Star Preacher," an extraordinarily fascinating collection of short stories dealing with the Civil War. His drawings are authentic, colored by a knowledge of those times such as few living men possess.

KATHARINE CORNELL, who has been called "The theater's most accomplished sorceress," and George B. Shaw, who has been called everything imaginable, make a good couple when they get together on Broadway, as they are now with Miss Cornell's production of Shaw's "The Doctor's Dilemma." Though this play's action takes place in 1903, thus providing Miss Cornell with the opportunity to wear picture hats and bustles, and though it was first produced in Manhattan some 14 years ago, and by the Lunts at that, it is one of the town's most pleasant entertainment pieces. It shows Shaw's sardonic mischief apparently never changes.

SHAW has five fashionable London doctors come together, each a specialist in his own line. Though they are friends, each feels a poorly concealed scorn for the professional reasoning of the other. It is a situation that provides many chuckles through the play's three hours, especially when one of the blood specialists loftily describes surgery as being "little more than manual labor."

But to this observer the best bit of acting is done by Bramwell Fletcher, who plays the tubercular painter. His portrayal of this role is well-nigh perfect.

NEXT week Artie Auerback will ask the New York News, where he is "employed," for a year's leave. Artie used to be a photographer on the News, but seven years ago he obtained a short leave to try his hand on the stage. He never went back. But every year, for the last seven years he gravely asks the News to extend his "leave" another year, and the News gravely complies.

Cat Meets Match

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THIS EVENING before sunset as I stood upon the front porch I heard something tearing through the brush and leaves along the slope. Some heavy brambles moved and I heard a feline scream of terror just at the edge of the bank above the road.

Then our yellow house cat emerged between the roots of an old apple stump and crawled, bedraggled, down into the road. I noticed along her flank and shoulder a bloody line where a thorn had torn her custard-colored fur. She glanced cautiously back, as though an enemy were following. Only when she had bounded through the opening in the small barn door, did she seem to feel secure.

I climbed up the bank by the same course the cat had come. I came upon a narrow rabbit trail blazed perhaps earlier this spring. Sprigs of sassafras, along the sides, were bitten squarely off. Small traces of fine gray fur, from a rabbit's breast and belly, showed where rough briars were in the path. Short lateral trails were there, that stopped where fresh shoots of clover were nibbled almost beneath the surface of the ground. I knew I was on the warm trail of a mother rabbit.

Above me, a brush pile lay, pressed close to the ground by heavy snows. A well worn rabbit highway led in this direction and I followed. I found a layer of ice and soiled snow frozen among the leaves above a suspicious little thatch of grass. Withered blue grass blades had been brought in and shaped cozily by a wild, expectant mother. There was no entrance on the nearer side.

Not until I lay down on the leaves and looked from the opposite way did I discover the doorway, so cunningly concealed that I wondered why I had not seen it sooner.

As I remained, watching, the rabbit timidly raised the lid of grass and moved out backward. This did not seem orthodox, for I had supposed that every self-respecting mother bunny came out of her lowly door facing the great outdoors.

Evidently she did not sense my presence, for she took a leisurely course in the opposite direction from where I lay and disappeared down the slope.

Getting to my knees, I saw, in an open space a short distance from the entrance traces of a fight. There was proof of other than rabbits' feet, and lighter fur was mixed with the soft spring coil. Custard, the cat, had met her match—and more. I knew that inside the soft lined nest was the first spring family of the wild rabbit.

Building In Mansfield During March Moves Ahead With More New Construction.

Mansfield's building program went ahead during March with more than $100,000 worth of construction work authorized by building permits.

A survey of the building front shows that work was started on 13 new residences to be erected at the cost of $78,400. Eight new garages were built with the cost running more than $1,950. Other new buildings were started and will cost $7,200. The total cost of new buildings begun during the month will be $87,550.

Seven residents applied for permits for remodeling or adding to their homes for a total of $4,000. Improvements on buildings other than residences amounted to $10,600. The total for improvements during March was $14,600.

Total cost for buildings and improvements on which construction was started amounts to $102,150. This was a decrease of $145,201 from February which was boosted high over the normal month by application by the Westinghouse Electric company for an addition to its plant.

Eliminating February, however, March showed a gain over December and January of this season and last and over February for last year.

University Women Hold Carnival and Election

GAYETY was the keynote of the unusual party held last evening for Mansfield branch of the American Association of University Women at the cafeteria of the John Simpson Junior high school. One hundred and 10 women came attired in appropriate dress for the carnival party which supplanted the regular meeting of the group.

It was a far cry from the formal meetings of the members but every one entered into the spirit of the occasion. Mrs. Virt Simpson, general chairman, assisted by Mrs. R. D. Lindsay, Mrs. R. M. Gage, Miss Margaret DeWitt, Mrs. J. L. Zimmerman, Miss Margaret Bird, Mrs. R. A. Rowlands, Mrs. J. B. Drumm, Mrs. R. W. Sutton, Mrs. Homer Swift and Mrs. Frank Lane had planned a full evening's fun with typical carnival entertainment.

With committee members dressed in circus costumes they played their roles as barkers very effectively. Eleven concessions were on the bill which consisted of a merry-go-round, made of a large garden umbrella, to which streamers were attached and stretched to pillars several feet away, with scooters as the means of transportation, giving the merry-go round effect; Madame Zulu, the fortune teller, Miss Catherine Culp; Professor Gobitz, the photographer, who was played by Miss Margaret Tinsley; turn wheel operated by Mrs. Homer Swift; shooting gallery run by Mrs. Lane; "Hit-the-Baby" by Mrs. Gage; ring toss operated by Mrs. Zimmerman; merry-go-round by Miss Bird; golf-putting in charge of Mrs. Drumm; and ticket-taker, Mrs. Sutton. Mrs. Rowlands was the loud barker for the wild animal show and Mrs. Lindsay operated the popular archery booth. Miss Margaret DeWitt urged the folks to see Jo-Jo, the dog-faced wonder.

When the guests had grown weary of the strenuous program they were treated to a floor show arranged by Miss Wilma Snider. This consisted of vocal selections by a quartet composed of Misses Charlotte Paste, Maxine Williams, Jennie Gannaway and Patty Olin; elephant tap dance by Misses Jean Schill and Margery Crowl; reading by Ronald Kern, who gave "Casey at the Bat"; vocal number, "Marie" by Miss Pauline Hoff; and a tap dance to "Alice Blue Gown" given by Misses Schill, Crowl and Betty Underwood. A piano duet was played by Eddie Fisher and Richard Sparks.

At the close of the program refreshments were served with the menu consisting of hot dogs, chocolate sundaes, orange pop, cookies, custard and coffee. Mrs. Frances Hypes arranged for the typical carnival feed.

Music for the merry-go-round was furnished by Misses Helen Sampsel, Eileen Schuler and Kathryn Landfair, who played accordions. Tickets were made by Miss Olive Scott and many others contributed to the event, including David Ireland who so cleverly made-up the barkers. Mrs. Tom Hoffman was awarded the grand prize.

Closing the meeting on a more serious note was the annual election of officers. Mrs. Charles Kuntz was chosen president for the coming year; Mrs. Tom Hoffman, vice president; Miss Margaret DeWitt, second vice president; Miss Ann Verba, secretary; Miss Alice Welsch, treasurer.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"The children are perfectly well," my father reassured me, "as are all the rest of us. I would like to have you talk to them, but—don't you think it might upset them—they do not expect it—and time is the essence of success in this particular undertaking.

"Oh! of course I musn't talk to them," I told him promptly, but it was an effort to get the words out cheerily, for I would have given much to have heard the boyish voices of Junior and Roderick in eager questioning, and the prattle of my small daughter, Faith.

"That is wise," my father answered, added warmly: "Thank you,—and—I understand, my darling. Now, goodbye. May I speak to Richard again, please?"

"Of course," I said, taking my dismissal philosophically. "I'll call him."

I beckoned to Dicky, and handed him the receiver.

"Ask him what to do about Lillian," I whispered, and he nodded comprehendingly as he closed the door of the booth.

The colloquy was short this time, and when he came out of the booth again, his brows were knitted as they always are when something is puzzling him.

"Dad says there will be no use in telephoning Lillian tonight. He talked to Harry tonight, and Harry told him that Lil, taking Miss Whitlock with her, had gone out, ostensibly to a cinema, at the nurse's urging. But Harry feels sure that she is following out some line of investigation of her own, and he does not know when she will be back. She asked Harry to stay in the house while she was gone, so that if Marion should call, he would be there."

I choked back sudden tears at the thought of the lonely, heartbreaking vigil Marion's mother and stepfather were facing, and my husband gave me a comforting pat upon my shoulder.

"I know, old dear," he said comprehendingly. "but there's nothing we can do about it."

"That's the worst of it all," I said, "our utter helplessness."

"I wouldn't say that," my husband answered. "When you see Mary tonight, you are likely to find out some exceedingly valuable clue. By the way, Dad says that no matter how late the hour, you are to telephone him, using his private phone of course, then the rest of the family won't be disturbed—and report to him what 'Z' says. Incidentally, Mary will eat up that 'Z' thing."

"Yes, won't she?" I answered with an absent little smile at the memories of Mary's love of melodrama which his words called up. But I really was paying little heed to what he was saying. All my attention was focused on Lillian's absence from home. In what strange paths were her feet wandering in search for her child?

"Dad agreed with me," Dicky went on. "that you must get a good sleep tonight, and go over to Lil's early tomorrow, prepared to stay as long as is necessary. He seems to think Lil will need you tomorrow, sorely."

"Why?" I asked in quick alarm. "Has he heard anything — disturbing—about Marion?"

I did not dare put more of my fear into words, but my husband's reassurance was prompt.

"Not a thing, disturbing or otherwise," he said "At least, if he has, he's keeping it to himself."

"Then why should Lillian need me specially tomorrow?" I asked.

Dicky hesitated perceptibly, and I knew instantly that something drastic was facing my old friend.

"Harry?" I faltered in quick alarm.

"Yes," Dicky answered gravely "Dad says that Harry is getting ready to take up his own line of investigation, and probably will start tomorrow. You know what that means."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T GO IT ALONE

Bridge is a team game. Why forget you have a partner and that he is trying to win just as much as you are? Let him make some of the decisions which you are unable to make yourself. Many a time he knows, from having seen his own cards, what is best for the side You, not having seen his cards, should pas on occasion to see if he wishes to double the opponents. Maybe they are offering your side a big gift, about which he knows and you do not.

South led the diamond K to the A, and declarer sent the spade K to the A North put South in with the club 2 to the A, for a lead of the diamond Q and the 3, which North ruffed. The heart K won then, setting the contract.

East was one of those positive fellows who like to take definite action at nearly all stages. He just can't pass and see what somebody else wants to do, especially his own partner. If he had listened to the bidding, he would have heard South deny a good heart fit with his first diamond bid, and his second bid of diamonds, after North's second heart call, showed that he didn't have even enough of them to support a rebid major. Hence he couldn't possibly have more than two, and West therefore must have had at least four or five.

If East had reasoned thus, he would have passed North's 3-Hearts, and West would have doubled it. Perfect defense would have enabled East and West then to score 800 points for a three-trick set, instead of being beaten at their own contract.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

Playing against West's 4-Spades, if North leads the club 2 to the K and then wins the heart J with his Q, why should he not return a trump now? What should he return?

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, April 3.

This day may be notable for the introduction of some sort of new factors or intriguing situations to tax and perplex, judging by certain conflicting planetary configurations. Sudden opportunities for change, innovations or other breaking away from routine may be looked for Elders and work seem to be concerned, and while benefits and growth may be counted upon yet there may be signs of treachery, subtlety and chaotic thinking and ill advised action.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which sudden opportunities for gainful change new work, innovations and reforms may materialize and assure growth, enhanced possessions and financial success But there are signs of pitfalls, snares, intrigue.

A child born on this day should be clever, ingenious, original and hard working, probably along lines of research, invention or other professional vocations. It may have a subtle mind, but be easily imposed upon.

ADOPTED LOCALE FORGIVES 'JOADS'

Bars Finally Down on 'Grapes of Wrath' In California County Library.

(By United Press)

BAKERSFIELD, Cal. — "The Grapes of Wrath," a novel by John Steinbeck telling the story of a mythical family that migrated from the "dust bowl" of Oklahoma to California, is being circulated by the Kern county free library after a ban of nearly a year and a half.

In the book, the Joad family leaves Oklahoma and their farm to seek a better life in California. After reaching California the family traveled across the Mojave desert to Bakersfield, in Kern county, at the southern end of the fertile San Joaquin valley.

Many Californians criticized the book, declaring it was not a true picture of the migrant problem in the state. On August 21, 1939, the Kern county board of supervisors requested the county librarian to withdraw from circulation some 60 copies of "The Grapes of Wrath" which had been purchased for the various branches of the library.

The book remained withdrawn from free circulation sources in Kern county until recently when the board of supervisors adopted a resolution which removed the original request.

The ban against "The Grapes of Wrath" was contained in a resolution which said: "The Grapes of Wrath" has offended our citizenry by falsely implying that many of our fine people are a low, ignorant, profane and blasphemous type living in a vicious, filthy manner."

CRACKS DOWN ON BAD EGGS

LAFAYETTE, Ind. —(U P)— The "bad egg" is on its way out in Indiana, with Hoosier farmers instituting a program calculated to increase the demand for eggs at the breakfast table by a more strict grading and candling of their product.

Investigation by the Purdue university agriculture station showed that one bad egg in her basket caused the average housewife to eliminate eggs from her shopping list for many months.

The Indiana "eat more eggs" program got its start with the passage of the Indiana Fresh Egg Law in 1940, with dealers certifying eggs under federal seals.

She Loved a Spy + + + + + +

CHAPTER XV

Karl regarded her with surprise. "Sister? What do you mean?"

"She didn't come home all night."

Karl Miller shrugged and smiled. "What makes you think I had anything to do with it? I have no interest in your sister."

"You know what I mean. . . ."

"Let us get on with our work," Karl said. Joan managed to control her resentment, and obeyed.

* * *

The afternoon finally dragged to a conclusion. At six Paul Sherman appeared and he and Karl had a short conversation in German, after which Karl left.

"I'm taking you to dinner," Paul said. "Karl's orders."

Without a word Joan got her coat and they left the club.

Safe in a small restaurant, she asked, "What about Sybil? Have you heard anything?"

"Not a word. And I can't ask Karl. It's too much of a chance."

"But we have to do something," Joan pleaded.

"Wait until tomorrow and see what happens."

They ate their dinner hastily but lingered over a cigaret and coffee.

Paul smiled grimly. "It amuses me the way Karl trusts me. Even the most clever criminals make one fatal mistake. This is his."

"You really think he trusts you now?"

"Yes. And since he does, he is sure to reveal something."

"And all this trouble started because I wouldn't take Sybil's advice."

Joan looked out of the window at the late Christmas shoppers. The streets were crowded and gayly decorated. Christmas! She had told Karl this would be the happiest Christmas of her life.

As Joan picked up her purse she remembered the ring Karl had given her. It was in its velvet box in her purse where she had placed it this morning. She had completely forgotten to return it. Karl did not seem to care particularly whether she did or not.

"It's probably stolen anyway," Joan thought bitterly as Paul took her back to the club.

Joan laid the dazzling emerald before Karl without speaking and Karl put it in his pocket as if it had been a slip of paper.

Joan wanted to scream, to pour out her anger. But she suspected that it would only amuse him.

Karl actually seemed to think that she would return to their former relationship. "You loved me yesterday," he reminded her. "What is so different?"

"You can force me to work for you—that's all!" Joan told him, her green eyes blazing. Had she ever loved this man? This cruel, conceited man?

An hour later Paul Sherman appeared again and said something to Karl in his own language. Joan noticed that Paul did not look at her, but she felt a personal importance in those guttural words even though she could not understand them.

Karl smiled as he turned to her but there was warning in his eyes.

"There are two officers here to see you, Joan. I believe they have news of your sister."

* * *

"The police!" In an instant Joan was on her feet.

"Something about Sybil," Karl repeated calmly, but his eyes warned her not to make a false move.

Joan risked a glance at Paul. It seemed to her that he shook his head ever so slightly. He was trying to tell her not to take any chances.

"All right," Karl snapped. "Show them in."

Paul disappeared.

When the door opened as he left, Joan could hear the music and laughter from the front of the club. Christmas gayety! How could these people laugh and be merry? How could they be so unaware of the drama that went on in that back office?

"Watch your step," Karl advised. "If you say anything, you will be the loser, I warn you. I will not hesitate to use all the cards I hold. Shall we put it that way?"

Her green eyes filled with tears. "Don't worry! Sybil is all I'm thinking about now."

Paul returned with two officers.

"Sorry to bother you, Mr. Miller."

"Not at all," Karl replied graciously.

"Tell me," Joan cried, "is it something about my sister? What has happened to her?"

"We're not sure it's your sister, Miss Leland. We want you to come down to headquarters and identify the clothes."

"Clothes? You mean . . . oh, no!" Her voice rose to a scream.

"Take it easy now," the officer advised. "We're not sure."

"Tell me," Joan begged. "Where did you find them?"

"A woman's garments were found on the Golden Gate bridge—a coat, shoes and a handbag with a letter addressed to your sister. Apparently it was suicide."

"Suicide? Sybil would never do a thing like that!"

"Maybe she didn't. Maybe she just wants you to think so. But we called up her employer, Mrs. Murdock, and she said she hadn't shown up for work."

Joan's eyes were upon Karl. "You had something to do with this," her eyes accused.

For one moment she was tempted to pour out the whole story of the spy ring, to scream her accusations, but Paul was at her side now, grasping her firmly by the arm, and the pressure told her to be silent.

Karl was saying, "I'm terribly sorry, Joan. You may go with the officers. Paul will go with you and see that you get home safely."

"Thanks!" Joan flung the word into his expressionless face.

All the way to headquarters Joan prayed that all this might be a mistake—that those clothes found on the Golden Gate bridge were not Sybil's. It could not be Sybil! Her sister had said she would "be back soon." Was that indicative of suicide? But when she was faced with the coat, shoes and handbag she knew there was no mistake. This was the smart gray coat to Sybil's gray suit, the suede pumps were Sybil's and the letter was one she had received less than a week ago from a friend in Chicago. There could be no doubt.

"Yes. These are my sister's," she told them tonelessly.

There was a sympathetic silence as an officer removed the clothes and letter.

"Do you know of any reason why your sister should have done this?"

"No." Joan wanted to cry but the tears would not come. A great pain welled up inside her. Sybil! Sybil was all she had in the world! She felt the floor swaying beneath her. She clung to the table.

"Poor kid!" Paul was saying as he helped her into a chair. Someone else brought a glass of water.

"It's almost impossible to recover a body from that part of the bay," one of the men was saying. "Of course we'll do all we can but the tide is so strong . . ."

"Stop it!" Joan screamed. "I tell you my sister didn't kill herself! I know she didn't!" She was speaking incoherently now.

The officers leaned closer. "Just what do you mean, Miss Leland?"

Paul came to the rescue. "Miss Leland is hysterical. It's only natural. This has been a terrible shock, of course. Probably a good night's sleep will fix her up. Why not let me take her home? She's had enough for one night."

"Sure," the officer said sympathetically. "Go ahead."

Paul led the trembling figure down the cold marble hall and into the street. Joan could not have stood without his support.

"Why didn't you let me tell them?" She asked over and over. "Paul, you know Karl had something to do with this."
